KENTUCKY LEGISLATURE.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

Debates on Mr. Grundy's Resolution for establishing Circuit Courts, continued from our last.

Wednesday, November 18.

Mr. HOWARD observed that he felt extreme solicitude on the decision of the question, a solicitude which arose not from any interest, which he had in it as a professional man but merely from that which he had in common with all his fellow citizens, in the establishment of an able and an independent judiciary.

The man who could feel indifferent as to the determination of this question must be extremely regardless of consequences, when he recollects that with the purity and soundness of our judiciary system is linked the preservation of his life, his property and reputation.

It had been said that the change would be beneficial to young lawyers. Being himself of that description, he would of course be served by it; but far was he from wishing to see a measure adopted, which would be attended with general effects so very detrimental. He readily admitted that the present constitution of the district courts was defective. But the imperfections which existed, were far from rendering necessary a radical change of the system. The only argument of weight which he had heard in favour of such a change, was the inconvenience of the attendance of witnesses at district courts; but much of the force of this argument was obviated by the consideration, that in chancery suits the attendance of witnesses was unnecessary, that the party had only to take depositions and transmit them to the court, and could even without his own personal presence have his business done, and obtain complete justice.

Great and well founded complaints had echoed through the state of the multiplicity of our counties. Even the advocates for the new judiciary system had united in the common regret at this evil. But whence arose the inconvenience attending the multiplication of counties? certainly the creation of offices, where there were not men to fill them properly, & the creation of local expenditures, where revenue was not raised to discharge them. And yet shall we increase these evils, when they are already so sensibly felt? shall we give to their counties new advantages which they never contemplated when they became counties? shall we require from among them officers of a still higher grade, and incur charges still more burthenome, by extending to them an expensive system of judiciary? he lamented that there was a refinement and subtlety in some of the arguments of the gentleman who spoke last, which rendered it difficult for him to understand them. There was one argument, indeed, which he easily understood, and he thought, as easily saw the fallacy of,—that was that as all the people contributed equally to the support of the general expenses of government, they should all upon the broad principles of equality, enjoy the same local advantages. But from whence did the gentleman obtain the premises on which the conclusion was founded? surely it was not from any public record that he learned that the several counties contributed equally towards the public expenditures. If he would take the trouble of examining the books of the auditor and treasurer; he would find that some counties contributed nothing;—he would find that the county of Gallatin had paid into the treasury 23 cents, and that the whole revenue from the county of Breckinridge amounted to but 48 dollars, whilst the claims, on the state were 58. To these were to be added the expenses of the quarter session courts. Whothence was it that paid the expenses of these courts? Was it the county of Breckinridge? No; it was the old, the rich, and populous counties. What, then became of that great principle of equality on which so much was bottomed. The principle of equality is good. It is likewise popular, and on that account is brought forward. But it does not apply. It is possible to extend a principle, however good, so far as to produce bad effects: there is a salutary point in acting upon the principle of equality, which I hope we shall now go beyond. The principle of equality, cannot require, that there shall be the same public expenditures on the counties that pay nothing, as on those that pay all into the treasury.

But it was urged that the present system was oppressive. How happened it then, that the people had made no complaints of the oppression,—that no petition had called the attention of the legislature to their grievances and solicited a redress of them?

There was, he thought, in the whole of the reasoning upon this subject one great radical mistake. The rights of man, and that political equality which is founded on these rights,—are, in the course of argument transferred to counties. Hence certain districts of country, because they happen to be called by the same name are all supposed to be possessed of the same rights. They are all counties, and as counties, it is said claim the same public attention, the same local institutions, the same national expenditures: and all this without any regard to population,—without any regard to the original elements out of which the rights of counties are compounded: for surely if the rights of any individual man be equal to those of his fellow men: the aggregate rights of any body of men will bear the same proportion to those of any other body of men, as the number of individuals in the one body bears to the number of individuals in the other. It is absurd then to speak of counties and what they are entitled to, without paying any regard to their population. In fact the people of Kentucky have no such ideas. It is not they who complain of their not having equal rights. The complaints which are made about the district courts, flow from the inhabitants of your little towns. A circuit court, they think would convert them into great towns, and their tipling houses and bake shops would rule in importance. In reply to the objections which had been made to the circuit courts on the ground of incompetency,—it had been said that parties injured by their decisions, had the right of appeal. But surely it was a very poor consolation to a man, that after he had incurred the trouble and expenses of carrying a suit completely through a court of justice, to tell him that he could obtain redress by an appeal. Would it not be better,—would it not be attended with less cost to the public and less vexation to the individual, that the courts should be so constituted that a man might indulge the expectation, of obtaining at once a decision conformable to the principles of law, and to the justice of the case?

Under the proposed plan, the judges must be multiplied, and young lawyers of course must be called to the bench:—for the compensation which could be afforded would be no inducement, to gentlemen engaged in a lucrative and extensive practice. But though a young lawyer himself; he would say that they were of all men the most unfit to assume the character of a judge. More frequently in pursuit of legal subtleties, than of solid justice:—there was great reason to fear that found principles would seldom be the criterion of their decisions. As associates with these young lawyers, it had been proposed that we should have plain men of good understanding, of a similar description with those who now preside in our quarter session courts,—men who last year were represented by the advocates of the new system as totally disqualified for the offices they filled,—but now by some metamorphosis, had become the luminary of their country.

Mr. Howard then made some observations on the article of expense, and concluded with recommending to the attention of the committee the example of the Virginia legislature, who on a question somewhat similar, had carefully avoided any precipitate change in their judiciary, and taken the utmost pains before they acted, called to their aid the best ability of their country.

Mr. BRIDGES observed that the resolution now before the committee contemplated a radical change in that department of government, which of all others ought to be most secure and free from error, and that as the happiness of the whole community depended on its perfection, it ought to be a subject of the most cool and dispassionate deliberation. The reasons urged on Thursday last by the gentleman from Washington (Mr. Grady) why a change ought to take place, appeared to devide themselves into two parts: first, the present system, he says, is unequal since the people from the remote parts of the state, have to attend at Bairdstown and Danville, to have their business done, when the people in the neighbourhood of these places, have the business done in their own counties. To obviate this objection, Mr. Bridges observed, it would be necessary to enquire what was the reason which had induced the legislature to pass the law organizing district courts, and why they were not extended south of Green river. At the time those courts were organized, there was a variety of land disputes in this country, which were confined to the northern side of Green river where, at that time, the disputed claims lay. But since the settlement of the vacant lands on the south of Green river, under a late act of assembly, disputes had arisen among the settlers, and it had become necessary to extend those courts to the counties south of Green river. They might, he thought, be advantageously extended, by fixing one at Greentown, and another in some other part of that country: and such an arrangement, he conceived, would fully obviate the objection of their being unequally distributed.

But, says the gentleman from Washington, why should I be compelled to attend out of my own county with my witnesses to defend my claim in a district court? I agree said (Mr. Bridges) that abuses have been made to the district court law, and that in consequence of those abuses, almost every suit may now be brought in that court, contrary to the intention of the legislature who passed the law for its institution. An amendment, however, of the district court law will cure that evil. Let the district courts be confined to the trial of criminal cases,—to suits in chancery, and to causes which involve the titles to land. Let all causes which require the attendance of a jury be confined to the courts of quarter session. Then the parties and the witnesses need not attend the court, as the deposition may be taken and sent to the district court: and the witness who is to ascertain a fact in a suit in chancery, is as apt to be found out of the county as in it,—and more so when I consider the dispersed situation of the witnesses, who are to prove the calls of the entries, &c.

But, (says the same gentleman) this will not cure the evil, as the parties must attend for orders of survey,—committions to take depositions, &c.

In reply to this objection Mr. Bridges observed, that the attorney could always obtain the order of survey, without the presence of the party, and that as to depositions a late act of assembly had rendered no de淀us necessary.

The establishment of circuit courts, he conceived, would be attended with a very serious evil to the poorer litigants.—The wealthy would transfer their claims to some friend in another state, and under the color of his name, would bring suit in the federal court, where they might have the benefit of those attorneys who are conversant in the law and who would not attend the circuit court. Another disadvantage indeed would attend these circuit courts. They would not only be destitute of lawyers of sufficient abilities but judges themselves could not be procured.—The young attorneys must be had recourse to, to preside in them, and they are far from being qualified for the office. If there be one learned judge & two unlearned ones; nothing better will be the result, then if one only preside.—Their decision will either be that of this one learned judge,—or it will be the opinion of the two who have no knowledge of the law. And is it possible (said he) that an associate judge, who scarcely knows the use of a scale and dividers, can be competent to decide on the important land causes?

He then entered into a statement of the comparative expenses of the two systems, which he exhibited in the following manner:

Expenses of the present system of Judiciary.

	DOLLS.
6 district judges at 600 dollars each,	3,600
Attorney-general 850 dollars allowance by the act of assembly,	850
7 district clerks' for ex-officio services,	420
7 district sheriffs' for do.	670

DOLLS.
120 quarter session judges at 120 per day, to sit 5 days in each term,	5160

43 quarter session sheriffs for ex-officio services supposing they are allowed the greatest sum allowed by law,	1290
43 sheriffs for do.	1720

13,710

Expenses of the Proposed Plan.
9 Circuit judges at 700 dollars each,	6,300

86 associate judges for 43 counties at 120 per day, allowing them to let 7 days in each term and 3 times in the year,	3,612
---	-------

43 circuit court clerks, for ex-officio services, at 60 dollars per year,	2,580
---	-------

43 circuit sheriffs for do at 70 dollars per year,	3,910
--	-------

Attorney general,	100
-------------------	-----

16,002

Saving a balance in favor of the present plan,	2,962
--	-------

From the above calculation of the expenses of the present system, there might be a deduction of $70 dollars, the allowance to district sheriffs, and they compelled to attend the district courts for the fees arising from suits tried there from other counties,—and then the balance in favor of the present system will be 2,962 dollars.

He did not take into consideration the expenses of the trial of criminals, because by the act of assembly the convicted is bound to pay the cost of his prosecution, and because there is a probability of there being as many criminals, under the proposed plan as under the present.

As to criminal cases, a change at present would be dangerous,—for in the frontier counties, there are no jails for the confinement of criminals—it would be in effect turning all into loose. As to guards, if there are circuit courts, there must be 43 guards: if there are district courts, there will be 6 or 7; and consequently, guards under the proposed system, will cost more than under the present.

Mr. HENRY apologized for saying anything upon a subject after so much had fallen from other gentlemen.

It was a subject, however, which admitted of being placed in different points of light, and every way of viewing it might be attended with advantage. Before any radical change ought to be made; he conceived that the defects of the present system ought to be so conspicuous to every beholder, that there should be a general conviction of the necessity of it. The question had been long agitated, but did not appear to have gained any acclimation of advocates.

It was a circumstance striking the mind on the first view of the plan, and which ought to induce the utmost circumspection, that the plan was a new one. No such one existed in any part of the United States, but in the district of Maine. He then took a view of the judiciary establishment in the several states: and observed that though a superior court in every county existed in the state of Rhode Island; yet that there were in that state only 5 counties. As to the state of Pennsylvania, which had been always referred to as an example of functioning circuit courts; it was to be remembered, that there were in that state only 27 counties with a population of 692,365; whilst in our own state, with a population of only 220,955; we had 43 counties. The circuit court plan of Pennsylvania was therefore virtually the same as the district plan of Kentucky.—In Pennsylvania the number of courts on the circuit system, was no greater than the convenience of the people rendered necessary:—but in our own state, the multiplicity of courts would be so great as to furnish an unanswerable argument, against the adoption of the circuit system.

In consequence of the size and population of the counties in Pennsylvania and some other states, there were generally two or three courts of concurrent jurisdiction.

dition. This he regarded as a very advantageous circumstance, as where partiality was suspected, it afforded to the parties an opportunity of removing their cause from one court to another.

The idea of putting all the divisions of the public territory upon precisely the same footing because they happened to be called by the same names—he considered as altogether preposterous, as would be apparent, he thought, to any man who would make a comparative estimate of the support which government derived from the counties of Floyd and Fayette.

The district plan he considered as affording great convenience to the poor man when suing the man of property.—The poor man might live in Scott; the rich man in Madison:—but he was not obliged to go all the way to Madison to obtain justice, as he would be on the circuit court plan, but was enabled to meet him on middle ground in Fayette.

He concluded with making some observations on the high expences of the proposed system, and dilated on the inconveniences, and evils which would result from a single judge presiding in a court.

LAWS OF KENTUCKY.

AN ACT

To amend the Act entitled "An act for settling and improving the Vacant Lands of this Commonwealth."

Whereas the act passed at the last session of the General Assembly, of the Commonwealth, for settling and improving the vacant lands of this Commonwealth, hath in many respects been found impolitic and unjust:

Sect. 1. Be it therefore enacted by the General Assembly, that where two hundred acres of vacant lands, or any less quantity, as the case may be, may have been located by a person holding and actually residing upon two hundred acres or a less quantity, obtained under any former law granting lands to settlers South of Green River, he, the or they, shall not be obliged to letle and reside upon the lands so located; but shall have the same privileges and rights, as those who locate, letle and reside upon four hundred acres.

Sect. 2. And be it further enacted, that the eighth section of the above recited act is hereby repealed, except so much as relates to fall-ficks and fall-frights; and two years from the passage of this law, be allowed all persons who have or may obtain certificates by virtue of said act, to obtain warrants in the manner therein directed, on their paying five per cent, per annum, from the time the money becomes due agreeable to said act.

Sect. 3. And be it further enacted, that persons who have actually obtained certificates for lands, under the authority of any law, for granting lands to settlers South of Green River, and who have located the same, shall not be at liberty to relinquish the same, and locate and hold it under the above recited act.

Sect. 4. And be it further enacted, that as soon as any person shall have obtained his warrant as aforesaid, he may proceed immediately thereafter to survey the land so appropriated, and the patent shall issue, and the land be completely vested without further limitation.

Sect. 5. And be it further enacted, that no claim granted under any law passed prior to the year 1800, for granting relief to settlers South of Green River, where the same is surveyed, and a plat and certificate thereof returned to the Register's office, shall be affected by any claim originated under the act entitled "An act for settling and improving the vacant lands of this Commonwealth," or any law that may be hereafter passed.

And all persons who have obtained or may hereafter obtain a certificate for a vacant land within this Commonwealth shall enter the said land with the commissioner of the tax, and pay taxes thereon in the same manner with lands held by patent.

And for receiving, recording, and a copy of any certificate granted to any settler on vacant lands the clerk shall receive 25 cents and no more. This act shall commence and be in force from and after the passage thereof.

AN ACT

Prolonging the time for removing Certificates, which through mistake, have been located on Military, or other Prior Claims.

Whereas it is represented to the present General Assembly, that the law is about to expire giving further time to remove certificates, which through mistake were located on military or other claims.

Sect. 1. Be it therefore enacted by the General Assembly, that the benefit & provisions of the second section of the act entitled "an act for granting relief to settlers South of Green River," passed December the 11th, 1800, be extended so as to operate and be in full force, until the further direction of the Legislature. This act shall be in force from its passage. Approved, December 19th 1801.

CONGRESS OF THE UNITED STATES.

House of Representatives.

December 7, 1801.

This being the constitutional day for the meeting of Congress, the house of representatives convened in their new chamber in the south wing of the capitol.

At half past 11 o'clock the members took their seats, present 81 members.

A Quorum being present, the members proceeded to the choice of a Speaker, Mr. Griswold and Mr. Davis tellers.

When the ballots being taken the following result was declared.

53 votes for Nathaniel Macon,

20 for James A. Bayard,

2 for Gen. Samuel Smith,

Whereupon Mr. Macon was declared speaker, and conducted to the chair.

On which he made his acknowledgement to the house for the honor conferred on him, with an assurance that it would be his endeavour to discharge the duties of the chair with integrity and fidelity.

The Speaker was then qualified to support the constitution of the United States; after which he qualified the members to the same effect.

The house proceeded to the election of a clerk. The ballots being counted it appeared that,

John Beckley had 57 votes

Mr. Olswald 29

On which Mr. Beckley appeared, and took the oath of office.

Mr. Otis delivered a message from the Senate informing the house that the Senate had made a quorum, and had in the absence of the vice-president chosen Abraham Baldwin, president pro tempore, and that they were ready to proceed to business.

On motion of Gen. Smith of Maryland, the house resolved that a message be sent by the clerk to the Senate, informing them that the house had made choice of Nathaniel Macon as speaker, and that they were ready to proceed to business.

Mr. Wheaton was chosen sergeant at arms by an almost unanimous vote.

Mr. Glazton was unanimously chosen door keeper, and Mr. Dun assistant door keeper.

Mr. Otis delivered a message from the Senate, informing the house that they had appointed a committee, to unite with a committee of the house, to wait upon the President, and inform him that the two houses had formed, and were ready to receive any communications from him; and that on their part they had chosen Mr. Anderson and Mr. Jackson.

The house immediately concurred, and appointed Mr. S Smith, Mr. Griswold, and Mr. Davis.

A message was received from the Senate, informing the house that they had appointed a committee, to unite with a committee to be appointed by the house, to take into consideration a statement made by the clerk of the Senate, of the books & charts belonging to Congress in his hands.

The house concurred, and a committee of three members was appointed.

Resolved, that each member be permitted to receive during the session, at the public expence, three newspapers.

Resolved, that the rules of the last house, until altered by this house, remain in force.

On motion, resolved, that a committee of five members be appointed to prepare a set of standing rules for the house.

The committee appointed to wait on the President, reported that they had executed the duty assigned them, and that the President had informed them that he would submit his communications to each house to-morrow.

Lexington, December 25.

The Editor respectfully presents to his readers the compliments of the season.—This number closes the publication for the year 1801, and with it, he fondly, hopes the painful task of detailing, accounts of the effusion of human blood.

The prospects of universal peace must give infinite pleasure to every philanthropic mind, as it will afford an opportunity of cultivating the earth, and improving those arts and manufactures which have a tendency to increase the happiness of the human race.

B E A R W O F C O U N T E R F E I T S.

There are in circulation a number of counterfeit Spanish Dollars, of the date 1799, they are of composition very much resembling silver, easily discovered on ringing by a sharp sound. The impression is rather stronger than in the good dollars.—The letters C and S in the word C A R O L I N A, the letter G in G R A T I A and the letter S in H I S P A N A are badly executed; but what appears most remarkable is the milling on the edge, which also well executed leaves in one part a niche, which appears to have been occasioned by the meeting of the tool with which it is executed.

William Moreman and Jofah Bradley, of Madison county charged with making the above counterfeits have been examined by the court of fact county and are ordered to further trial. The necessary apparatus for coining was found upon them, together with a number of those counterfeits ready made; it is said they have several partners residing in Lincoln county.

The Legislature of this Commonwealth adjourned on Saturday last; during their session they passed the following acts:

1. An act concerning Daniel Barry;

2. Concerning public roads;

3. Establishing fundy inspections;

4. To amend the penal laws;

5. For the relief of John H. Craig;

LINCOLN COUNTY, 1801.

September Court of Quarter Sessions, 1801.

IT being suggested to the court, that the real estate of Molly Myers deceased, when divided amongst her representatives, will not exceed the value of thirty pounds and it also being suggested by Gideon Bolly, that he has purchased the interest of four of the representatives, and is desirous of the sale of said estate: On the motion of the said Gideon Bolly, it is ordered, that a summons issue against Lewis Myers, to Garrard county, as one of the representatives and heirs of the said Molly Myers; against Jacob Beam and Mary his wife, to Bullitt county, against Jacob Myers, Abraham Bolly and Rebekah his wife, Michal Myers and David Myers, to Lincoln, as heirs of said Molly Myers, to appear here on the first day of the next February term of this court, to shew cause why the said land should not be sold, and the money arising therefrom, divided amongst the different representatives.

And it being suggested to the court, that Jacob Catteer and Elizabeth his wife, and Benjamin Myers, heirs of said Molly Myers, are not inhabitants of this state; it is ordered that a copy of this order be inserted in the Kentucky Gazette for eight weeks successively, commanding them to appear here on the first day of the next February term of this court, to shew cause why the said land should not be sold, and the money arising therefrom, divided among the different representatives according to law.

GREAT BARGAIN.

Will be sold by the Subscriber, and for a greater part, Extensive Credits will be given, in annual payments, the purchaser giving good bond and security; The following PROPERTY I will sell, from this day forward, (to wit:—)

VALUABLE BUILDINGS, and the

Lots of ground they are on, in Paris—they begin at the Main Corner street facing the Court house, and running parallel with the public ground one hundred feet—

The first a large two story frame building, in which there is a large well finished store house and counting room, both large fire places of brick; the other part well calculated for a tavern, six well finished rooms plastered, and four large fire places; another room, thirty-five feet by twenty, and two fire places, and within five feet of the back room door, a brick lodging room, and a kitchen adjoining.—The balance of the building of brick, two stories high; with four houses, twenty feet square, rented out to different families; convenient to those are two small kitchens—there is a stable and small garden for the use of the large building. I have also nine acres of out lots in excellent order for cultivation—Those buildings were first valued by a number of workmen at eight thousand dollars; and several useful additions have been made to them since—I will now give them extremely low, and give them clear of all incumbrance.

Another property I have in Mason county, one mile and three quarters from Limetone—two valuable overshot mills, in as high credit for manufacturing flour, as any in the state, and are now repairing and almost done, so as to start in complete order when the season for grinding commences, with the best Burr and Allegany stones, rolling screens &c.—Those mills in the season for grinding, can make forty barrels of flour every day that they are worked; and any person inclining to purchase, can be informed, that the quality of the flour is superior to any that has been floated from Limetone. With which I will sell a valuable negro man, a good miler; the plantation of 140 acres, 100 apple trees, of fruit equal to any in the state, a fine clover and blue grass pasture and meadow, a small dwelling house and farm, with other out houses, cherry and peach orchard—the title indisputable; and I will give it clear of all incumbrance. For this property I have in two years paid nine thousand dollars.

I have also for sale, 700 acres of Military land, fourteen miles from Washington, North West of the Ohio river, with a very promising fall tick, supposed to have salt water, a small trial has been made, and some salt made by a Mr. Sherriff.

I have also two small plantations in Bourbon, which I will sell—they are mostly salt free land.

I have patents for lands near Montgomery court house, of the first quality, eight thousand acres, the half of which I will sell at one third its value; the purchaser may have his choice; patented 17 years ago; entries very special.

After the half of 600 acres of first quality, three miles from Fleming court house; old patents and special entries—on the same terms.

I have also one thousand acres for sale, adjoining lower Mackafer's tract, level, but of inferior quality—for this I will take good horses at 6s per acre; the tithe undoubted.

I have also for sale about 300 acres, on Cedar creek, of Floyd's fork, with a never failing spring on it; a part rich land, and a part indifferent, within six miles of Mann's lick; this has excellent range and timber—for this I will take good fat at 12s per acre, if cash 9s per acre.

I have also for sale, fixed hundred acres, patented land, on Clover lick, eight miles from the Crab orchard—this I will take 3s per acre for cash, or 4s 6d in horses.

If it will be an accommodation to those who may incline to purchase the mills, I will give in an excellent house woman, now living in Lexington.

I will also fit a good stock of hogs cattle, mares and colts, with the mills.

I will give such excellent bargains in all, or any of the aforesaid property, that any person inclined to purchase, may be well accommodated. The mills I will deliver up the tenth of March next, or if sooner required, on a little more advance, they shall be given up.

Money, good Merchandise Negroes, and Horses, will be taken by instalments, as well be fit the purchaser.

Application to my son John Edwards, in Bourbon, or to Mr. David S. Brodrick, in Washington, or Mr. Enoch Smith, near Montgomery court house, or James Brown esq. in Lexington, for information and contracts with respect to the property, or to the subscriber, either in Bourbon or Washington, may be made.

Any of my creditors choosing to purchase, shall have on the lowest terms, as I am determined to sell.

I will sell 1000 barrels of flour, all to be delivered before the 15th of March next.

I have also one other plantation for sale, near Warwick, 233 acres cleared, and the title secure.

Any person purchasing the mills I will furnish with wheat at cash price, and will, if employed, engage to clear them in the sales of flour &c. this season, 2500 or 3000 dollars.

JOHN EDWARDS, Sen.
14th September, 1801. *5d

Congress of the United States.

House of Representatives.

December 8, 1801.

According to the standing rules of the house the following committees were appointed:

Committee of Elec[tions],

Revisal and unfinished

business,

Claims,

Ways and Means.

A committee was appointed on enrolled bills.

Resolved, That a committee be appointed to enquire whether any and what alterations are necessary in the government of the Territory of Columbia, and report by bill or otherwise.

Moved, that the secretary of the Treasury be instructed to lay before this house a statement of the accounts of Timothy Pickering late secretary of state.

On this motion a short debate ensued, which, however, not effecting the merits of the main question, we omit.

On motion the consideration of the question was postponed till Monday next.

ALEXANDRIA, Nov. 30.

The following was handed by Mr. John Bulkely, American consul at Lisbon, to capt. Coleman, for publication:

Lisbon 6th October, 1801.

By a letter from Cadiz, dated 11th August, it appears that the Spaniards had captured and carried into Algeciras, five American vessels, all richly laden; two of which belonged to Messrs. Willings and Francis, bound to Leghorn.

“By another letter, dated Algeciras, 21st September, the Spaniards had further captured the Molly of Philadelphia, which they condemned, and the ship Perseverance, capt. Knox, had been sent in there, though her destination was Naples;
with strict injunctions not to touch
at Gibraltar.”

The 20th September, the U. S. frigate George Washington, arrived at Gibraltar from Philadelphia.

The rumour spread on Saturday of Spain having declared War against America, is without foundation; capt. Coleman having no other information than what is contained in the above communication from Mr. Bulkely.

It appears by the papers of last evening that Menou offered terms of capitulation on the 30th, August.
